Rapporteur Maystadt Report

25 Years of EFRAG:
Leading the Next Era of Corporate Reporting

#EFRAG25

Philippe Maystadt's main conclusions

Keep IFRS global, make Europe influential

Commitment to global IFRS and standard-by-standard endorsement

- ✓ Comparability is the core benefit
- ✓ Carve-ins only with extreme caution

Clarify the “European public good” criterion and strengthen the evidence base

- ✓ More explicit attention to prudence
- ✓ Financial stability and growth
- ✓ Better EU impact assessments/field testing

One European voice upstream

- ✓ Governance reform so Europe can:
 - Coordinate positions early
 - Speak credibly to IASB (with ARC/Parliament more engaged earlier).

Philippe Maystadt report 2013

Three options for Europe's voice on IFRS

1

Transform EFRAG

- Add a high-level Board validating IASB comment letters & endorsement advice
- Economic impact of standards: TEG remains the technical engine
- Stronger NSS/stakeholder integration

2

Move the role to ESMA

- Closer link to enforcement, rationalisation of resources
- Strong opposition from stakeholders
 - Risk of enforcement dominating standard-setting
 - Risk of IFRS becoming more rules-based

3

Create an EU Agency

- Highest public-legitimacy signal
- Unrealistic in the short term
 - Cost
 - Time to build
 - Limited scope

#EFRAG25

Seven pillars for a state-of-the-art sustainability reporting in the EU

Double materiality as a corner stone	• Impacts, risks & opportunities interconnected
Robust characteristics of quality	• On an equal footing with financial reporting: relevance, fair representation, comparability, verifiability, understandability
Holistic coverage of topics	• Environmental, social & governance in interaction
Principles-based approach	• In line with the EU standard-setting culture
Structured sustainability statement	• “Second leg” of standardised corporate reporting connected to financial statements
Interoperability	• Onboarding of other EU regulations & other frameworks (GRI, ISSB & others) through a single report
Digital readiness	• Taxonomy & IA conversant

European Commission -
Speech
[Check Against Delivery]

Keynote speech by Commissioner Albuquerque at EFRAG's annual conference: "25 Years of EFRAG: Leading the Next Era of Corporate Reporting"

Brussels, 8 June 2026

Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen.

My thanks for inviting me to take part in your anniversary event.

Let me start by congratulating EFRAG on 25 years of shaping and strengthening corporate reporting across Europe and beyond.

When EFRAG was established in 2001, Europe was entering a new phase of financial integration. As capital markets became increasingly international, investors needed a common language to understand company performance and value. EFRAG helped Europe embrace that challenge.

There is an echo of that challenge today.

As we work to build stronger European markets for capital through the Savings and Investments Union, we are once again confronted with the need to overcome fragmentation and create the conditions for capital to move more efficiently across Europe.

Strong markets depend on trust, transparency and comparability, values that have been at the heart of EFRAG's work for the past quarter century.

Today, I would like to reflect on EFRAG's contribution to both financial and sustainability reporting, and on the role it can continue to play in the years ahead.

EFRAG's journey began as the European Commission's trusted technical adviser on the endorsement of the International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS).

Its first mission coincided with a decisive moment for European corporate reporting as Europe moved towards the use of IFRS Accounting Standards, and a more harmonised framework for listed companies.

The result was greater transparency and comparability of financial information across the Union and beyond. That greatly contributed to strengthening investor confidence and support the development of European capital markets.

Over the years, EFRAG has played a crucial role in assessing whether new or amended IFRS Accounting Standards are aligned with our legal framework and serve the European public good.

The Commission has relied extensively on EFRAG's technical expertise, stakeholders' engagement and independent advice throughout this process.

EFRAG's work has also extended beyond Europe. EFRAG has helped ensure that European perspectives are heard and reflected in international standard-setting discussions, contributing to the development of high-quality global reporting standards.

EFRAG's mandate expanded with the emergence of the European Green Deal and the Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive.

The development of sustainability reporting responded to a growing need from investors and other stakeholders for comparable information on factors that increasingly influence companies' performance, resilience and long-term value.

Climate, nature, social, governance and transition risks can all have tangible financial consequences.
